100 Power Words

That Sell, Persuade & Convert

Copy-paste these words into your emails, landing pages,
DMs, captions, and CTAs — and watch what happens.

A BEMA production · featuring Mark & Alex

Mark: "Alex, why do some emails get opened and others go straight to trash?"

Alex: "One word. Literally. The wrong word costs you the sale.

The right word? Closes it before they even realise it."

This swipe file is the shortcut.

What is a power word?

A power word is a word that triggers an emotional or psychological response in the reader — making them stop, feel something, and take action. Great copywriters don't guess which words to use. They have a list. This is yours.

5 categories · 20 words each · with usage notes

Category 1: Excitement & Energy

Use these to create hype, momentum, and forward motion.

Revolutionary

Makes the product feel like a breakthrough, not an upgrade.

Game-changing

Signals that what comes next rewrites the rules.

Explosive

Great for results, growth, or launches.

Unstoppable

Gives the reader a sense of inevitability.

Electrifying

Rare enough to stand out, vivid enough to land.

Breakthrough

Implies a wall being broken — perfect before a solution.

Turbocharged

Mechanical energy applied to abstract results.

Momentum

Subtle. Implies movement already started.

Ignite

A verb that reads like a spark — use in CTAs.

Unleash

Implies something being held back. Powerful in headlines.

Surge

Works well for metrics, traffic, revenue.

Skyrocket

Visual. Overused in some niches, still converts.

Dominate

B2B and competitive angles love this word.

Epic

Casual but punchy. Works in social copy.

Supercharge

Tech and productivity copy staple.

Crushing it

Conversational. Disarms with familiarity.

Fire

One word, infinite uses. Slang that converts.

Viral

Signals scale. Use carefully — overused.

Bold

Underrated. Implies courage + confidence.

Fierce

Competitive, strong, not aggressive.

Category 2: Fear & Urgency

Use these to highlight stakes, create FOMO, and push action.

Warning

Stops the scroll instantly. Use sparingly.

Danger

Pre-frames that something is at risk.

Deadline

Makes the offer feel time-sensitive.

Limited

Classic scarcity. Still works everywhere.

Urgent

Direct signal that waiting costs something.

Expiring

Softer than 'limited' — good for emails.

Last chance

The final push. Use at the bottom of emails.

Running out

Feels real. Implies genuine scarcity.

Before it's gone

Creates a picture of loss in one phrase.

Don't miss

Low-pressure urgency — personal and warm.

Act now

Direct CTA framing. Pairs with a deadline.

Only X left

Specific scarcity outperforms vague scarcity.

Closing soon

Soft version of urgency. Good for sign-ups.

Risk

Used in the problem — makes the cost of inaction real.

Falling behind

Competitive fear. Hits ambitious audiences.

Missing out

FOMO in two words.

Slipping away

Emotional. Works in retargeting copy.

Irreversible

Used for inaction consequences. Powerful.

Too late

End-of-sequence urgency. Use after all other nudges.

Now or never

Binary. Creates a decision point.

Category 3: Curiosity & Intrigue

Use these to open loops and make people lean in.

Secret

Still one of the highest-converting words in headlines.

Hidden

Implies something being revealed — creates pull.

Revealed

The payoff to 'hidden.' Use in subject lines.

Behind the scenes

People love access. This signals it.

Nobody tells you

Opens a loop people need to close.

The truth about

Reframes the reader's existing beliefs.

What they don't want you to know

Classic. Conspiratorial. Converts.

Untold

Implies a story that hasn't been shared.

Forbidden

Use carefully — implies taboo + desire.

Unfiltered

Signals honesty and raw value.

You won't believe

Clickbait adjacent but effective in DMs.

Surprising

Sets expectations that something unexpected follows.

Counterintuitive

High-trust signal — implies depth of knowledge.

Rarely talked about

Niche signal. Makes the reader feel special.

Controversial

Implies stakes. Pre-frames a bold take.

Shocking

Best in subject lines. Gets the open.

Inside look

Access framing. Works for community or courses.

Leaked

Playful scarcity framing. Use in social copy.

Under the radar

Niche authority signal.

Quietly

Underrated. 'Quietly doubling revenue' is compelling.

Category 4: Trust & Authority

Use these to build credibility, proof, and confidence.

Proven

The single strongest trust word.
Data or example must follow.

Guaranteed

Removes risk. Use only when you can back it up.

Verified

Implies external validation.

Trusted

Soft but powerful. 'Trusted by 500+ brands.'

Award-winning

Credential shorthand. Lowers skepticism.

Expert

Self-positioning word — use in bio and service copy.

Industry-leading

Comparative claim. Back it up with numbers.

Track record

Implies history of results, not just claims.

Results-driven

LinkedIn and proposal copy staple.

As seen in Social proof shorthand. Even small features work.

Case study

Signals depth of proof. High-trust readers love it.

Data-backed

B2B and professional audiences respond well.

Transparent

Rare in marketing. Stands out because of that.

Authentic

Overused in branding, still converts in email.

No-brainer

Removes decision friction. Use near the CTA.

Risk-free

Pair with guarantees. Lowers hesitation.

Backed by Authority by association. Powerful for cold audiences.

Tested

Simple and grounded. Implies real-world use.

Recommended

Social proof lite. Warm and low-pressure.

Credible

Meta-trust word. Use when positioning against competitors.

Category 5: Desire & Aspiration

Use these to paint the dream and make people want the outcome.

Elite

Signals exclusivity. Use for premium offers.

Exclusive

Access framing. Makes the reader feel chosen.

Premium

Price anchor. Signals quality before the price lands.

Luxury

Use in lifestyle copy. Emotional, not logical.

Dream

Opens aspirational space. Best in long copy.

Freedom

The underlying desire behind most online purchases.

Effortless

Removes the perceived pain of change.

Confident

The emotional state your product delivers.

Unstoppable

Who the reader becomes after using your product.

In demand

Status signal. Makes skills or services feel scarce.

Magnetic

Personal brand and attraction marketing copy.

Powerful

Broad but effective. Works in almost any context.

Elevated

Subtle luxury signal. Used in personal branding.

Ahead

Competitive aspiration. 'Stay ahead of the curve.'

Transformed

Before/after framing in one word.

Thriving

Positive outcome state. Warmer than 'successful.'

Respected

Deep human desire. Hits in B2B copy.

Winning

Colloquial. Energetic. Converts in social copy.

Next level

Simple aspiration signal. Pairs well with CTAs.

Legacy

Long-term aspiration. Use for high-ticket offers.

How to use this swipe file

01 Don't force them

Power words work when they fit naturally. One well-placed word beats five crammed in.

02 Match the emotion to the moment

Use fear words near deadlines. Use desire words near the offer. Use trust words near the price.

03 Test subject lines first

Emails are your fastest feedback loop. A/B test one power word at a time in subject lines.

04 Pair with specifics

'Proven system' is weak. 'Proven 3-step system used by 400+ clients' is strong. Specificity = credibility.

05 Keep a personal swipe doc

When you see a word that stops you while scrolling, write it down. Build your own living list on top of this one.

06 Mark & Alex rule

If Mark wouldn't say it at Pizzanomics HQ, don't say it in your copy. Keep it human.
